DBS meets, UOB misses; relative trades should work

Singapore banks 2Q earnings season was mildly disappointing, with q/q NIM decline the key metric. In addition to the inherent balance sheet structure differences at the banks, the efficacy of hedging strategies probably played a large role in how the numbers shaped up. DBS emphasized hedging and balance sheet management in 2Q as part of the reason for the relatively resilient NII outcome. OCBC likely missed NIM (-12bps q/q in 2Q to 1.92% with exit NIM at 1.88%) due to less efficient hedging, as the YTD rate pass-through from USD to SGD has not been in-line with historical correlations. 2025 guidance from DBS has stayed steady, while OCBC's guidance was cut and UOB's guidance (post suspension last qtr) appears lower as well. The key driver of Singapore bank stocks is dividend yield, yield spread to SORA and buybacks. These metrics are holding up best for DBS, which is reflected in its premium valuation. The results do not give a reason for this premium to erode. OCBC may be relatively weaker post the results, and UOB as well. We continue to maintain N on all three stocks, with a higher rate cut probability impinging on DPS at some point. UOB DPS was weaker than JPM in 1H, which may suggest the shape of things to come.

DBS

DBS reported 2Q25 profits of S$2,824mn, up 1% y/y, down 3% q/q and in-line with our estimates. NIM compression at 7bps q/q was in-line despite slightly lower LDR vs. our forecasts. This is a good outcome after 12bps q/q NIM compression at OCBC, and exit NIM further 4bps below 2Q levels. Non-II was a miss at DBS, with fee and trading lower vs. a high watermark in 1Q (IB was exceptionally strong) and elevated expectations. AUM and EA are up 12/10% y/y resp, and also up 2.3/2.1% q/q led by 'strong' net new money inflows as per management comments. It is possible that DBS is moving a larger proportion of client assets towards longer-term discretionary portfolio management, which may lead to lower swings in WM earnings/transactions, but has more durable and sticky returns. Hence the 2Q miss on non-II is likely temporary. Cost control (5% y/y opex gr) and AQ (NPAs down 4% q/q, to 1%) held up quite well, leading to credit costs of 13bps. New NPA formation (S$244mn) was up q/q from a very low base, but broadly in-line with the last 10 quarters' average of S$254mn. Write-offs appeared elevated during the quarter. Capital was adequate at 15.1% CET1 (fully phased-in), with DPS at 75c (60c+15c). Total dividend payout came to 75% for 2Q and 74% for 1H. Guidance suggests limited changes in Street EPS estimates, with small downside risk to NII coupled with lower provisions. DBS highlighted key digital assets initiatives over the years, which could lead to longer-term advantages (link, link).

UOB

UOB reported 2Q25 profits of S$1,338mn, down 6% y/y, 10% q/q and 12% below JPMe. The miss was across P&L lines. NIM compressed 9bps q/q, slightly lower vs. our forecast, but better vs. OCBC's 12bps q/q decline. Guidance of 1.85-1.9%

FY25 NIM vs. ~1.95% in 1H suggests NIM of 1.85% at best in 2H. Non-II was down 10% q/q, as wealth and loan/trade-related fees came off a high base in 1Q. Costs were managed well, in line with our expectations. SPs moved higher q/q (32bps ann.), with 1H NPL increases largely in Greater China and in building and construction, based on sector breakdown. Overall provisions were broadly in-line on limited GP. DPS was lower at S$1.10 (85c regular + 25c special), with the bank keeping to its 50% regular payout ratio vs. our expectations of 52c.

DBS Group Holdings (Neutral; Price Target: S$48.00)

Investment Thesis

We hold a Neutral rating on DBS.

- The bank's commitment to and delivery of payouts in numerous forms (progressively increasing regular dividends, bonus shares and buyback) allows investors to pay a multiple for the income stream. Yet, with progressively higher payout and range-bound EPS, it becomes tougher for the stock to re-rate beyond a point.
- DBS is positioned to deliver ~S$10.8bn in profits over the next 3Y, despite a potential decline in NIM with lower rates. WM continues to drive non-II, and asset quality appears intact. We expect 12/6bps annual decline in NIM 2025/26E. The bank has reduced rate-sensitivity of NIM over the next few years, helping improve capital generation visibility. Yet, the synchronized decline in rates across SGD and HKD suggests NIM will still come off, and DPS would stabilize in 2028-30E.
- DBS has delivered one of the best ROE expansions in the last decade as high rates and technology-led changes across the franchise led to improvements in growth, efficiency, and returns. The bank's digital strength is driving gains in loan market share, WM, as well as underwriting, which had previously seen challenges at the bank.
- Any indication of a pick-up in NPL formation would be a catalyst for de-rating. A key risk area could be trade-related exposure.

Valuation

Our Jun-26 PT of S$48 is based on a fair P/B of 1.79x, assuming a normalized RoE of 15.3%, a risk-free rate of 4.2%, a cost of capital of 9.2% and a growth rate of 1.50%.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Upside catalysts include: (1) further increases in payout; (2) resilient GDP growth, leading to better-than-expected growth and asset quality; (3) sustained improvements in underwriting and monitoring, leading to lower-than-expected credit costs; (4) better-than-expected efficiency gains due to digital investments; and (5) better-than-expected WM performance.

Downside risks include: (1) dividend disappointment; (2) asset quality deterioration; and (3) faster and/or larger Fed rate cuts or decline in SORA, which would drive a larger than expected NIM compression. Any acquisition will come with two-sided risks.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

United Overseas Bank (UOB) (Neutral; Price Target: S$38.00)

Investment Thesis

We are N on UOB.

- UOB has delivered RoE with the least volatility among Singapore banks over the past 20 years. We expect this trend to sustain over the medium term. We expect over 12% ROE in the next 2Y, driven by a combination of buyback and a focus on cost management, along with sector-high loan growth (4-7%). However, the shift in the rate outlook could lead to lower NIM, which would be a drag.
- Management's commitment to 14-14.5% CET1 by 2027 provides visibility on the capital return. This follows the increase in fully phased-in CET1 to 15.2% following Basel IV implementation, which increased the bank's capacity to return capital. We expect S$750mn annual buyback over next 3Y.
- The Citi acquisition is an important driver of RoE as the bank gets through a phase of investments in 2023-24. UOB's acquisition of Citi assets in Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and Vietnam added 3% to loans, 5% to AUM, and ~5% to EPS in steady state.
- Following increased spend in the last 2Y, we expect cost control to be a focus, supporting efficiency improvements.
- We believe valuations appear fair at 10.4x/1.26x 2025E PE/PB, with a 5.5% yield. We expect the ROE trajectory and capital management to drive the stock.

Valuation

Our Jun-26 PT of S$38 is based on a fair P/B of 1.19x with a normalized RoE of 12.2%, a risk-free rate of 4.5%, a cost of capital of 10.3% and a growth rate of 0.5%.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Downside risks include worse-than-expected asset quality, growth and NIM disappointment, and lower-than-expected dividends and buyback. Sustained higher operating costs would also be a downside risk. Higher-than-anticipated digital investment spending could be a drag on profitability.

Upside risks include sustained delivery on RoE, cost management post investments in 2023-24, and higher dividend. On PPoP, the bank's ability to manage early wins from its digital investments could lead to positive revisions, and investments coming to fruition earlier than anticipated would pose upside risks to costs.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. In Americas equity research, some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe over the next six to 12 months. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
