

Singapore Banks

Capital returns III: Returns largely intact despite lower interest rate environment

Singapore bank share prices are up 8% on average in the past 3 months, underperforming the STI (at +10%), largely due to the stellar performance of small- and mid-cap stocks in anticipation of the S$5bn MAS program to boost local stock markets. That said, the SG banks have performed decently in our view, despite falling interest rates in SG and HK, on the back of their capital-returns programs, strong asset quality standing and strong wealth management franchises to provide cushioning to falling NIMs. With capital returns being one of the key factors in share price performance for Sing banks, we re-access banks' ability to carry out announced capital returns and the trajectory of core dividend payouts for the banks over the next three years and potential for more capital announcements given the lower rate environment, which is a headwind for profitability. Overall, our analysis shows no concern for banks to continue their announced capital returns plans and see scope for banks to continue to at least hold core DPS flat or raise core DPS as committed. Furthermore, despite lower profitability outlook at all 3 banks as they remain capital generative, with excess capital likely to build up to S$5.8bn/4.5bn/8.7bn by 2027 for DBS/UOB/OCBC by our estimates, equivalent to 4.1%/7.5%/11.3% of market cap, respectively, which presents potential for more capital returns announcements in the following years.

- DBS has affirmed its commitment to its S$8bn returns plan, equivalent to 5.7% of market cap, and to continue its 24 cents step-up in core DPS for 2025 and 2026. While no commitment is given for 2027E, our forecasts show that DBS is capable to continue its step-up into 2027E given robust ROEs of 16.8%. Among the three Singapore banks, we see highest yields for DBS at 6.9%/7.3%/7.7% in 2025-27E including buybacks. Furthermore, we still see ample scope for DBS to do more in terms of capital management in the medium term as they remain capital generative.
- UOB as well has reiterated its commitment to its S$3bn returns plan, equating to 5.0% of market cap. While DPS for 1H was lower vs the year before, we remain optimistic that UOB will hold to a flat DPS for FY2025 given its strong capital position and still-decent ROEs, which brings total yields of 7.4%/6.8%/5.4% for 2025-27. With UOB still capital-generative post its current commitments, we see potential for more capital management at the end of its current program.

- OCBC has also reiterated its commitment to its capital returns plan of S$2.5bn, equivalent to 3.2% of market cap. Similar to UOB, OCBC's 1H25 DPS is lower than the year before, adhering to its 50% payout policy — that said, the bank notes that further assessment will be taken at FY and usually DPO in 2H is higher. We thus remain optimistic that OCBC can hold DPS flat yoy given its rich capital levels and decent ROEs. Furthermore, given its high capital we also anticipate that it will continue its special dividend payment through to 2027, which will see total yields of 6.5%/6.4%/5.8% for 2025-27E.

Singapore still our most preferred region in ASEAN

Singapore remains our preferred region within ASEAN as we see the country better positioned, supported by strong currency performance and decent capital returns, with declared returns averaging 6.7%/6.3%/6.4% of market cap in 2025-27E; and the expectations of more capital returns to be announced further out. Furthermore, we continue to see Singapore banks delivering strong total BV growth — 11.6% CAGR in 2024-2027E, and 12.4% on a BVPS basis boosted by share buybacks — lower than total BV CAGR of 15.1% of Indonesia, similar to 13.6% for the Philippines, and higher than 8.0% at Thailand banks. We are Buy rated on all three banks, with target total return upside of 21%/24%/23% for DBS/UOB/OCBC.

Capital returns on track despite lower rates, with further flexibility for some

Amid the lower-than-expected interest rate environment in Singapore and expectation of additional Fed rate cuts, we expect more downward pressure on Singapore banks' profitability. This scenario has raised investors' focus on whether the Singapore banks can sustain the capital return plans they previously announced, hold or step up core DPS, and if they still have the potential to return more. Following our previous note on Singapore banks' capital return strategy, here we update our analysis on banks' capabilities to carry out capital returns in the weak interest rate environment, which takes into consideration our economists' outlook of five further Fed rate cuts. Overall, our revised analysis highlights that banks will be able to carry out their previously announced capital return plans, underpinned by their strong capital positions and given still-decent expected ROEs based on the lower rate environment. Among the three banks, we expect DBS to lead in terms of the return yield (incorporating both ordinary dividends, special dividends and share buybacks, and the stipulated timeline), at 6.9%/7.3%/7.7% of market cap in 2025-27E, followed by 7.4%/6.8%/5.4% for UOB and 6.5%/6.4%/5.8% for OCBC. Furthermore, we still believe the Sing banks have the capability to return more, based on their still strong capital accumulation every year. Our capital generation analysis shows the excess capital at DBS/UOB/OCBC will accumulate to S$5.8bn/4.5bn/8.7bn by 2027E, equivalent to 4.1%/7.5%/11.3% of their market cap.

DBS - Core DPS step-up till 2027 is achievable, in our view

DBS is on track to carry out committed core dividend step-up and announced committed capital returns. DBS announced a S$0.75 DPS for 2Q25, including S$0.60 core DPS and S$0.15 capital return dividend, same as 1Q25 and in line with previous guidance. At the analyst briefing, DBS reaffirmed its ability to continue to carry out its announced S$8bn return plans and see scope to deliver a S$0.24 step-up in core DPS for 2025 and 2026, underpinned by ROE assumptions of 16%-17% and mid-single-digit RWA growth, despite the lower interest rate environment. While there was no commitment from management for continued S$0.24 core dividend step-up in 2027, we see the ability for DBS to do so, as we forecast ROEs rising to 16.8% for 2027E. Overall this implies core DPS payout ratios of 64%/68%/70% for 2025/26/27E based on our profit estimates, which are within our calculation of DBS's capital-neutral payout of 60-70%, based on 16-17% ROE and a mid-single digit RWA growth. That said, we acknowledge a risk given DPO in 2027 is at the high end of the capital-neutral payout range, and as such should outlook change negatively and net profit fall below expectations, this would put a risk on capital. Regarding the announced S$3bn buyback plan, DBS has cumulatively executed S$371mn, representing approximately 12% of the total announced plan. The execution pace of the buybacks has recently moderated, likely attributable to perceived high valuations (currently at 2.0X forward P/B). We expect DBS will accelerate its buyback activity to support the share price should valuations become more attractive, similar to its actions in April 2025. With that said, we still expect DBS to deliver S$1bn buybacks each year in 2025-27E, and to deliver 6.9%/7.3%/7.7% total returns, with 6.2%/6.6%/7.1% in dividend yields.

We see room for DBS to announce further step-up in non-core capital returns: In addition to the announced S$8bn capital return plan for the next 3 years, we assess whether DBS still has a buffer for more returns, particularly in light of a potentially softer profitability outlook. Our analysis below shows scope for DBS to announce more capital returns along the way (which we have not baked into our assumptions), or potentially pursue acquisitions. We see excess capital at DBS continuing to build up quickly, to S$4.3bn by 2027E, even after taking into consideration all the capital return plans currently announced. Furthermore, MAS imposed in 2023 an additional S$1.5bn capital requirement due to DBS's IT issues, which has yet to be released and which we estimate could further boost 2027E excess capital to S$5.8bn.

Exhibit 5: Per our calculations, DBS will still accumulate capital after accounting for all the capital return plans announced

UOB - Expecting flat DPS in 2025 with potential for more at end 2026 to support ROE

We expect UOB to accelerate and complete the announced capital return plans in 2 years and hold to flat DPS for 2025...

UOB announced a S$0.85 interim DPS at 2Q25 results, implying 50% DPO for 1H25, lower than its S$0.88 paid in 1H24. That said, the bank has reaffirmed its commitment to the announced S$3bn of capital returns in the next 3 years, which includes 70% (S$2bn) in share buybacks in the next 3 years and 30% (S$0.8bn) in special dividends paid in 2025. UOB has maintained a consistent pace in its buyback program, having cumulatively purchased S$494mn between Mar and Aug after announcement of the plan, with S$372mn worth of shares canceled. If UOB continues at its current pace, we estimate the bank will likely complete its originally planned buyback plan within 2 years, and this acceleration would also help lift ROEs quicker and closer to UOB's new target of 12-13% ROE in the medium term. Despite the lower interim dividend and management noting its 50% DPO target, we expect UOB to hold a flattish core DPS of S$1.80 in 2025E (implying a 54% payout) given its strong capital levels with CET1 at 15.1% in 2Q25, continued capital accretion even at a 54% payout and given our estimates that a return of DPO back to historical levels of 51% in 2026E will still see DPS rise to S$1.86. With these assumptions, we expect total returns of 7.4%/6.8%/5.4% in 2025-2027E, with 5.7%/5.1%/5.4% in dividend yields. Based on the announced capital returns, this will help support UOB ROEs at 11.8%/12.2%/12.7% in 2025/26/27E.

...and potential for more capital return to be announced at end 2026 to help boost ROE:

Based on our new analysis taking into consideration the lower rate environment, we estimate that UOB would still be capital generative, though less than we previously assumed. Our models show that total excess accumulated capital at the end of 2025 to be S$1,644mn (removing the remaining committed buybacks), rising to S$3,020mn at end-2026. Given management noted that it will consider further capital returns after its current program ends, we remove our expectation of a further S$0.5 special for 2025-26. With the capital accumulated we see potential for UOB to announce a further S$2bn share buyback at the end of 2026 which is our expectation of when their share buyback will be completed as noted above (though not yet in our numbers).

OCBC - Also expecting DPS to be flattish in 2025-27E

We expect OCBC to maintain flat DPS in 2025... At 2Q25 results, OCBC announced a S$0.41 interim DPS for 2025, implying 50% payout ratio. On core dividend payout, OCBC notes that for interims they usually adhere to a strict 50% payout but noted in the past, 2H payouts were higher, with total DPO ratio reaching 53% for the full year post consideration on the environment and outlook. In addition, the bank remains committed to the S$2.5bn capital return plan, with special dividends set at 10% of annual net profit in 2025 and share buybacks over 2025-2026. We expect there could be some consideration for flat DPS given its solid capital levels. We forecast flattish DPS for the 2026FY at S$1.00 (S$0.41 interim, S$0.43 Final and S$0.16 special), which would see full year payout ratio rise to 66% (55% core). We expect special dividends to sustain and be flattish in 2026/27E, and core dividend payout of 53%/50%. On share buyback programme, we note so far that OCBC has bought back shares but these shares were not canceled, hence we view these as for ESOP. As such, OCBC continues to have S$1.1bn buyback outstanding to be completed by next year. Overall, we see a total return of 6.5%/6.4%/5.8% in 2025-2027E, with 5.7%/5.7%/5.8% in dividend yield.

...and we do see the bank as able to do more capital optimization: We estimate OCBC will remain capital generative, with excess capital building up over the next 3 years, reaching S$5.0bn by 2027E at the bank level if no further capital is pared down vs what has been announced. Furthermore, excess capital at the insurance subsidiary GEH amounts to S$3.9bn, which we calculate at OCBC current ownership in GEH at 93.7% of the S$4.1bn amount due from subsidiaries in 2Q25. Together with the S$5.0bn excess at the bank level as we discussed above, the total excess capital of OCBC group would amount to S$8.7bn by 2027. With this robust capital level, we think OCBC should extend its willingness to prioritize capital optimization alongside its stated desire to pursue strategic inorganic opportunities. With the recent closure of GEH GO, and announcement of CEO transition, we expect the bank to provide more updates on its capital plan once the new leadership is established and the economic environment stabilizes.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Quantum

Quantum is Goldman Sachs' proprietary database providing access to detailed financial statement histories, forecasts and ratios. It can be used for in-depth analysis of a single company, or to make comparisons between companies in different sectors and markets.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html>.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company neither has a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
