Post-result call and lunch feedback

- 1.9%-1.95% NIM guidance is based on the assumption of 3 rate cuts in 2H, although given the timing, the impact of any cut would be limited. It is also based on mid to single digit loan growth. NIM sensitivity of 12bps for every 100bps cut. Absolute NII is the focus and management targets to keep the decline in NII within mid single digit. If market interest rate falls, higher volume will be needed to help NII.
- Wealth management fees remained strong, with S$4bn net new money in 2Q (total S$9bn in 1H25). Invested assets c.60% of total. OCBC will continue to focus on private banking in Singapore, Hong Kong and Dubai. Growth in 2Q came from both Bank of Singapore and Consumer Financial services.
- Cost control remains strong, helped by past investment in technology. Credit quality should remain solid. Although there is pressure on HK CRE exposures, OCBC has been prudent with the book and is adequately provisioned.
- Dividend policy: 50% ordinary payout ratio and 60% total payout ratio for 2025. Some flexibility to the upside in the short term as the group is well capitalised. Remains committed to share buyback plan.
- Acquisition strategy: OCBC looks to grow mainly organically. Integration risks, price and strategy alignment would be the key assessment points for future acquisition opportunities.
